ONE MOVE CAN CHANGE HISTORY

The world holds its breath - a chess tournament in the Palace of Culture and Science in Warsaw is supposed to decide the fate of an international conflict. The tournament turns out to be a cover for a spy game between two superpowers.

It's the early '60s. The American Dream is turning into a nightmare, as Soviet forces are sailing towards Cuba and Nikita Khrushchev is threatening the USA with a nuclear attack. Tensions between the USA and the USSR are reaching a boiling point. In Warsaw, two grandmasters are preparing for a chess game: an American and a Russian. It's not going to be your usual game, for not only are the grandmasters participating in the game, but also U.S. and Soviet military counterintelligence agencies.

The world holds its breath in fear of a nuclear war, while an unprecedented event takes place in Warsaw, in the Palace of Culture and Science's Congress Hall.

The tournament's participants and spectators experience moments of terror at the very beginning of the competition, when it turns out there's one person missing in John Konigsberg's team... and it's John Konigsberg himself. He died suddenly three days before the game and was replaced by Joshua Mansky - that's how the world reminds itself of the chess wunderkind from the mid 20th century. The fate of the game is in balance up until the very end.

What will happen during this meeting? Who will turn out to be the real winner? One thing is certain: Joshua Mansky is going to play the game of his lifetime, a game determining the fate of the world.

“The Coldest Game is a spy-thriller/political fiction film. Our goal wasn't to evoke direct comparisons or parallels to the current socio-political events, but to tell an exciting story. The spy plotline, tensions between two superpowers and the risk of a nuclear conflict are topics that, despite the passage of time, don't lose relevance.

- Łukasz Kośmicki, director and scriptwriter

A SYMBOL OF AN ERA: THE PALACE OF CULTURE AND SCIENCE

The film is set in The Palace of Culture and Science in Warsaw. It becomes a silent witness to the eponymous game. The ever-present mystery of the place, its undiscovered rooms and secret passages, which rarely can be seen in other films, will make the Palace become an icon to its times once again. Through Allan Starski's production design and Paweł Edelman's lens, the Palace of Culture stands as one of the protagonists of this electrifying game.

The Palace of Culture and Science has always been at the centre of events and history, thus becoming the symbol of a postwar rebuilt Warsaw. The decision to construct the Palace was made in the capital of the Soviet world, by Josef Stalin himself. It was designed by the architect Lev Rudnev. In the words of Prime Minister Jozef Cyrankiewicz, it's been "radiating over Warsaw" since 1955. The marble used for finishing the building's interiors was brought from the Ural Mountains, the Caucasus, and the Świętokrzyskie Mountains.

The Coldest Game is set in a number of rooms, corridors, as well as in never-before-seen canals and the Palace's secret passages.

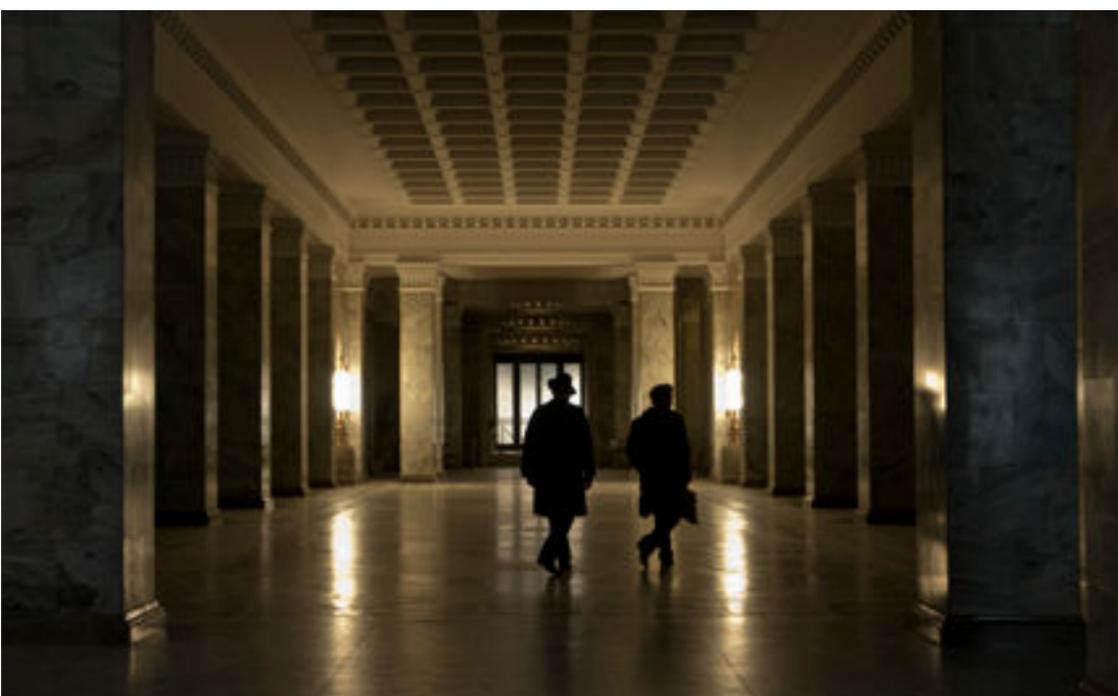

THE PALACE OF CULTURE AND SCIENCE IS STILL THE TALLEST BUILDING IN POLAND.

THE FULL HEIGHT, FROM THE GROUND TO THE TOP OF THE SPIRE: 237 METERS.

THE BUILDING HAS 46 STORIES AND 3288 ROOMS.

3500 SOVIET AND 4000 POLISH WORKERS WERE EMPLOYED IN CONSTRUCTING THE BUILDING.

34 MILLION BRICKS AND 50 THOUSAND TONS OF STEEL WERE USED FOR THE CONSTRUCTION.
